

IN THE ABSTRACT:

Please delete the Abstract of the published International Application and insert the following:

--A robotic milking system includes a stall wherein dairy animals enter one at a time to be milked automatically. A holding tank receives successive measures of milk from successive dairy animals. Separation devices receive the successive measures of milk from the holding tank to separate components from the milk.--